Tories target online piracy

Critics says proposed new copyright laws appear unenforceable

The federal government has moved to end free downloading online.

Industry Minister Jim Prentice introduced legislation yesterday that caps penalties for copying a movie at $500.

The amendments to Canada's copyright laws would also make it illegal to copy a compact disc or DVD to a personal digital device such as an iPod — even if consumers have already paid for the CD or DVD — if it involves breaking a so-called digital lock to make a copy. People caught hacking digital locks would face penalties of up to $20,000.

These higher penalties would also still apply for posting music using the Internet or peer-to-peer technology, or for posting a copyright-protected work, such as a picture or video, onto a website such as Facebook or YouTube.

When it comes to enforcement,

protest group online

» One online group, Fair Copyright for Canada, was set up on Facebook in advance of the new bill to protect against the government's copyright plans and has 40,000 members.

Internet service providers are exempt from liability for copyright violations by their subscribers.

Prentice said the proposed amendments are "clearly intended to protect consumers," but the Liberals said the new act appears unenforceable. "Are we going to have cyber police now?" asked Liberal heritage critic Denis Coderre. "How are they going to manage to go and (investigate) while respecting privacy?"

Vision Vancouver set to pick mayoral candidate

By KRISTEN THOMPSON
Metro Vancouver

Vancouverites will be one step closer to knowing who our Olympic mayor will be after Vision Vancouver's nomination meeting on Sunday.

Candidates Allan De Genova, Raymond Louie and Gregor Robertson are vying to take over the party's leadership and go head-to-head against the Non-Partisan Association's Peter Ladner in November's civic election.

De Genova is a five-term park board councillor.

Louie is a two-term city councillor.

Robertson is NDP MLA for Vancouver-Fairview.

About 13,000 Vision members are expected at the party's nomination meeting at the Croatian Cultural Centre on Commercial Drive.

By comparison, 2,000 people voted at the NPA's nomination meeting last weekend when Coun. Peter Ladner upset incumbent Mayor Sam Sullivan.

Vancouver's other civic party, the Coalition of Progressive Electors (COPE), hasn't yet announced whether it will run a mayoral candidate or if it will back one of the other two parties.

There's been speculation that Coun. David Cadman might run as the party's mayoral candidate.

Maple Ridge wants better transit deal

Mayor may opt out of TransLink

By JOYCE YIP
for Metro Vancouver

Maple Ridge may opt out of TransLink if it doesn't start receiving its promised express bus lines by fall.

Currently, Maple Ridge residents pay more taxes, property taxes, higher hydro bills and gas to be a part of TransLink. But they are not receiving the services they deserve, said Mayor Gordy Robson.

"When we hear that people in Vancouver want a plan that costs billions more to bury their system underground, we ask ourselves, 'Why do they get that Cadillac system when we don't even get a bus?'" he said. "So, if we don't start getting transit in Maple Ridge, there's no point of us being a member of that group."

Other than the West Coast Express, which only runs in the morning and late afternoon, Maple Ridge residents'

Powell tells his story

Former U.S. secretary of state gives speech

By KRISTEN THOMPSON
Metro Vancouver

Colin Powell says the only thing he misses about being secretary of state is having his own plane.

"It was cool," he said yesterday to a crowd of more than 600 people at the Vancouver Trade and Convention Centre during a speech about leadership in the 21st century.

"They took my plane away and gave it to Condi (Condoleezza Rice), and I haven't seen it since."

During his 50-minute speech, Powell spoke of the unique relationship between the United States and Canada, the importance of bringing democracy to Afghanistan and the difficult transition from diplomatic service to private life.

"There's an emptiness and openness that comes upon you," he said. "You've got to do something to fill it. I bought a Corvette."

He also fills that emptiness by travelling the world giving speeches.

"The techniques of leadership I started out with (as a lieutenant) 50 years ago are universal," he said, adding that this applies to leadership in the military, politics, business and academia.

"Set goals people can believe in, that stretch (people) but are achievable. Leaders have to have passion, but passion isn't enough. Great leaders have to communicate that passion in an infectious way. You don't want to just motivate your followers, you want to inspire so they are self-motivated, so they have the same passion you have."

Ticket scalpers targeted

Organizers of the 2010 Olympics in Vancouver renewed their warning about ticket scalping yesterday, saying it will be using "secret shoppers" to buy tickets from unauthorized dealers to figure out where they came from.

VANOC has already warned it has identified at least one unnamed national Olympic committee as being a potential source of tickets for scalpers. The national committees get first rights to some tickets but cannot resell them.

It also announced yesterday that a preemptive attack against counterfeit goods is being launched. An advertising campaign will warn consumers they cannot be assured of the safety of fake or unlicensed Olympic-related merchandise or that the factories that made it met the ethical standards required of sanctioned producers. Mayor to proclaim Trevor Linden Day later this year

By FERNANDO CARNEIRO
Metro Vancouver

Where will you be on Trevor Linden Day? Driving down Trevor Linden Street, perhaps?

A day after Captain Canuck retired, city council announced yesterday that Mayor Sam Sullivan will proclaim Trevor Linden Day later this year, likely on the day the Vancouver Canucks retire the popular forward's jersey.

In addition, the City's Street Naming Committee has been encouraged to name a street after No. 16.

The idea is well supported by thousands of fans who have taken their love of Linden online. More than a dozen Facebook tribute sites have been started.

In His Own Words

» Rogers Sportsnet Pacific is showing Trevor Linden In His Own Words, a celebration of No. 16's career, on June 23rd at 9 p.m. and again on June 27 at noon. The one-hour feature looks at the highs, the lows and the tearful long goodbye.

Theresa Slack wrote on the Facebook group Trevor Linden Day: "My husband and I proudly named our two-year-old son Linden, just because of Trevor Linden! Greatest Canuck ever!"

Tammy Chretien wrote on Trevor Linden Day Proposal that she was pregnant during the Canuck's Stanley Cup run in 1994.

"... Every time I cheered the team on he would start kicking up a storm. No wonder he ended up playing hockey.

"My son sent him an autographed copy of his own hockey card when he was in peewee last year and he got back a wonderful letter and picture from Trevor."

Yesterday's announcement also said that city council will look at other ways to celebrate and honour Linden. A statue, perhaps?

It's a Car-Free kind of party

Sunday's events to feature music, parade, wrestling

By JOYCE YIP
for Metro Vancouver

On Sunday, more than 50,000 people are expected to jaywalk on west-end streets without looking both ways.

Car-Free Vancouver Day is taking place simultaneously on Commercial Drive, the West End, Main Street and Kits. It features theatrical performances, hip-hop and acoustic music, marching bands, fool's parade and, exclusive to 2008, Mexican wrestling.

Craig Ollenberger, co-ordinator of the Commercial Drive festival, said he's thrilled.

"You really don't know

«You really don't know what to expect because there's all kinds of crazy things happening every year.»

Craig Ollenberger, festival co-ordinator

what to expect because there's all kinds of crazy things happening every year," he said. "But the character of each neighbourhood always comes through."

The event began in 2005 as the Commercial Drive Festival in response to the Gateway Program, said Matt Hern, founder of Car-Free Vancouver Day.

"In an era of rising gas prices, spending millions of dollars on a gateway capacity is ludicrous," he said. "It's an economically suicidal project."

Researchers will use submersibles developed by North Vancouver's Nuytco Research Ltd. to examine freshwater microbialites in B.C.'s Pavilion Lake.

Search for life on Mars hits home

Using single-person submersibles, NASA scientists and UBC researchers are studying a lake in B.C.'s Interior for clues in their search for life on Mars.

The study, headed by researchers from the University of B.C. and McMaster University, is examining freshwater microbialites — reef-like, bacteria-formed structures — in Pavilion Lake, north of Lillooet.

The structures are similar to fossils from the Cambrian period, about 500 million years ago. They are seen as potential windows into ancient ecosystems on Earth and possibly Mars.

The Pavilion Lake Research Project, which started in 2004, will use a pair of submersibles, created by North Vancouver's Nuytco Research Ltd., to map and collect samples of microbialites at depths of 60 metres.

De Genova: 'I'm here to serve'

Park Commissioner plans to turn dingy suites into housing

By JEFF HODSON
Metro Vancouver

Solutions, not promises, is what Al De Genova says sets him apart from his Vision Vancouver rivals and is what makes him the best choice for mayor in November's civic election.

"If you want something done, you ask Al," said De Genova, 52, a five-term park commissioner.

"If you breakdown at 2 in the morning and you're in Squamish and you call me what's in a name?

» Before embarking on a career as a real estate project marketer, De Genova sold paper products in Chinatown for 15 years. He said his Chinese name means, My Promise to You.

up, I won't even hesitate. I'll just jump in the car, grab an Oh Henry bar, and drive there and get you. That's how I work ... I'm here to serve."

De Genova's solutions include a plan to house 600 to 800 people, by turning deplorable, unlivable suites into housing.

He aims to turn the Downtown Eastside's 20 worst buildings into 20 of the best.

The city would purchase the buildings, bring them up to fire and health codes, and partner them with detox and rehabilitation services, De Genova said.

Funding would come from $100 million that De Genova hopes to extrapolate from the development of four city sites.

De Genova, who is married with three children, sat as a Non-Partisan Association park commissioner for 13 years, but was suspended from the NPA caucus by Mayor Sam Sullivan in 2006. He has sat as an independent for the past two.

Robertson touts 'leadership'

MLA wants to get mean on crime, green up city

By JEFF HODSON
Metro Vancouver

Gregor Robertson's vision is a city that is a leader in sustainability and is an inspiration to the world's other big cities.

"Vancouver has so much potential," said Robertson, the NDP MLA for Vancouver-Fairview. "With good leadership and with all the people engaged and empowered, we're capable of doing good things."

Robertson, 43, said the city is at a crossroads — beset with extremes of affluence and desperate homelessness and poverty — and is in need of bold leadership.

It's leadership he feels he can deliver if chosen as Vision Vancouver's mayoral candidate for the civic election in November.

"City Hall has become very partisan and nasty politics. It has to change. I want to change the culture of politics in Vancouver to being constructive, respectful."

Robertson, who is married with four children, is running on a four-goal platform.

He wants to end homelessness, get tough on crime and make Vancouver the greenest city in the world. He also wants to make the city a creative capital.

The city, he said, needs to set a goal of ending homelessness in less than 10 years with a focus on affordable housing.

He sees the Olympics and the years following the Games as an opportunity to showcase Vancouver as a city that got its act together and overcame its challenges.

City Coun. Raymond Louie relaxes in his city hall office.

Louie eyes spot at 'the people's hall'

City councillor's plan focuses on most vulnerable

By KRISTEN THOMPSON
Metro Vancouver

Raymond Louie said he's running for mayor to give the city back to its people.

"This is my hometown," said Louie, a two-term city councillor and one of three Vision Vancouver candidates vying for the party's mayoral candidacy.

"That's why I feel so passionate about giving (everyone) opportunity, because my parents struggled when they first came here and I know firsthand the challenges (Vancouverites) face."

Louie, a first-generation Chinese-Canadian with three young children, said his mandate is to create a city that is environmentally and socially sustainable by focusing, in part, on affordable housing and child care and seniors centres.

"We shouldn't be solely measured by the number of tall buildings or yachts but by how we treat our most vulnerable, and I think we're failing at that," Louie said.

generations

» Raymond Louie, his wife and three children live in East Vancouver.

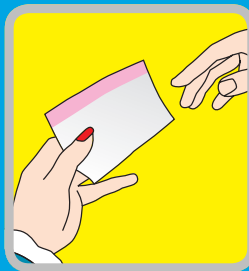

» His parents came to Canada in the late 1950s from China, following his grandfather, who had come 20 years earlier. He's one of three children, all of whom were born and raised in Vancouver.

"If you don't have an opportunity to put food on the table, you're not worrying about the 100-mile diet."

Council needs to do a better job ensuring that every citizen understands Vancouver belongs to them and they can come to them for support, he said.

"What I hope is that city hall is no longer a place where people go to complain, but a place where we can exchange ideas respectfully and come up with solutions. It becomes ... the people's hall again."

Day delays Taser report

Public safety minister requests time to review

By JEFF HODSON
Metro Vancouver

An anticipated final report into the RCMP's use of the conducted-energy weapons was delayed one week yesterday at the request of Canada's Minister of Public Safety.

The report, by RCMP Complaints Commissioner Paul Kennedy, was commissioned by Public Safety Minister Stockwell Day after the death of Robert Dziekanski at Vancouver International Airport.

Dziekanski, a 40-year-old Polish immigrant who was moving to Canada to live with his mother, was Tasered by RCMP on Oct. 14, 2007. He died at the scene. Video of the incident was broadcast around the world.

The delay in the report's release is because Day, who received a copy last week, requested a meeting with Kennedy early next week, according to media reports.

In December, Kennedy released an interim Taser report that concluded that the RCMP needed to improve data collection and clarify to members and the public when the weapon should be deployed.

Defending NAFTA pact

Attacks on the North American Free Trade Agreement in the U.S. presidential campaign and in Congress are prompting Canada to send out its diplomats to give the 14-year-old pact a boost.

Senior envoys from Canadian consulates in New York, San Francisco, Detroit, Miami, Denver, Seattle and seven other U.S. cities fanned out across Capitol Hill on Wednesday to argue the agreement has benefited Canada, Mexico and the United States far more than it has hurt them.

Democratic presidential candidate Barack Obama has promised to renegotiate NAFTA to include stronger protections for workers and the environment, after a tough Democratic primary battle with Hillary Clinton in which both candidates criticized the agreement. REUTERS

Internal threats worry China

Olympic security to hit unprecedented level, Interpol says

China is more concerned about domestic than international terrorism and is pouring unprecedented resources into ensuring the security of the Beijing Olympics, the head of Interpol said yesterday.

Ronald Noble said foreign militants would find it very difficult to operate in China but this did not necessarily mean the risk of a terrorist attack was lower than at the two previous Summer Games, in Sydney and Athens.

"No, I can say that the Chinese authorities have said

Munich incident

» Security has been an ever-present worry at Olympic Games since 11 Israelis died in Munich in 1972 after Palestinian gunmen took them hostage and German authorities botched a rescue attempt.

they are more worried about a terrorist threat coming from inside than from outside, or inspired by inside-related activities than outside-related activities," he told Reuters.

Noble said pro-Tibet protests that disrupted the international Olympic torch relay this year had increased concern that "people might want to use the Olympics in order to make a statement against China."

"But the Chinese authorities have devoted more resources to making sure these are safe Olympics than any other country has ever before, and China is a very, very difficult country for a foreigner to operate in without him, or her, or that group being detected," Noble said.

"And so for that reason, from Interpol's perspective, I can say with all honesty there isn't anything else that I believe China should be doing or could be doing to ensure that there would be a safe and secure Olympics."

Britain to probe loss of file

Important papers forgotten on train

Britain said yesterday it would look into and explain an embarrassing revelation that a senior intelligence official had left a file with top secret documents about Iraq and al Qaeda on a train.

A passenger found the orange folder on a London commuter train and handed it over to the broadcaster BBC, which said it contained highly sensitive details about Iraq's security forces and the British government's latest assessment of al Qaeda.

The unnamed official who lost the papers worked in the cabinet office, the central government department that supports the work of Prime Minister Gordon Brown, and has been suspended from his duties. Brown said it was "a very serious incident."

"We will have to trace where these documents have gone, if they have gone anywhere (other) than in an envelope to a local BBC station," he told reporters. "We will inquire and report on all the circumstances in which this happened."

Price fixing probed

Criminal charges laid over alleged gas collusion

record high gas

» Gas prices have reached $1.51 per litre at some Quebec pumps in recent days.

The Competition Bureau says it is investigating gas price fixing in other provinces in the wake of criminal charges and convictions in Quebec.

The bureau announced at a news conference in Montreal that criminal charges have been laid against 13 people and 11 companies for allegedly fixing gasoline prices in four Quebec markets. This is the first time since 1955 that a gas price fixing prosecution has resulted in convictions, said bureau commissioner Sheridan Scott. Three companies and one individual pleaded guilty yesterday. They were fined a total of $2 million.

Scott said gas retailers in Thetford Mines, Victoriaville, Magog and Sherbrooke allegedly phoned each other to agree on gasoline prices.

DO YOU NEED A DETOX?

	YES	NO
Are you often tired?	☐	☐
Do you get headaches frequently?	☐	☐
Do you have a hard time losing weight?	☐	☐
Are you bloated or retaining water?	☐	☐
Mental cloudiness?	☐	☐
Is your skin getting bad?	☐	☐

These symptoms above are some of the most common signs of toxic overload, and detoxing once or twice a year is often recommended as a solution. In a recent study of 116 women in the UK, 70% were satisfied or very satisfied with the results from their Biofirm detox.

I unjunked my body!

Lina works in the fitness industry in Ottawa and recently came across an article on detoxing. Here is her story:

"I was having a hard time losing those stubborn extra pounds and I was tired all the time, which showed in my face. So when I came across a Biofirm story in the local newspaper, it made me curious.

It definitely made sense to me that we get tired and bloated from too many toxins in our foods and from our environment. But I didn't know that it made us gain weight! So I purchased a box of Biofirm and took the recommended 6 tablets a day for a month with lots of water and high-fibre foods. I was determined to unjunk my body!"

I lost 11 pounds on the detox!

"In the first 4 weeks I lost 7 pounds. I definitely felt lighter and my skin was looking great - I was glowing! I had read that it could be unpleasant to take Biofirm but I actually enjoyed it, especially because you are still able to do your daily duties. You don't have to stay home or do it on the weekends.

After the 30 days detox, I wanted to continue, so I bought another 14 days of tablets. Again, I lost another 4 pounds and my clothes were getting very loose! I was thrilled - and the great part is that I didn't have to exercise vigorously for 6 weeks!!"

DETOXING: A GREAT WAY TO START A HEALTHIER LIFE

Everyday, our bodies are exposed to toxins from the air we breathe, the water we drink and especially the processed foods we eat. If our bodies get overburden with toxins, our liver suffers and we start seeing the effect on our health. Our skin is affected, we get tired, we retain water, get headaches, digestion problems, bad breath and find it especially hard to lose weight.

Researchers have now discovered the biological cause of those stubborn pounds: Toxic particles bind water in the bodies' soft tissue and inhibit your metabolism from burning fat efficiently. The Conclusion: To lose weight, you must first cleanse your body!

Ovechkin hauls in NHL hardware

Capitals superstar adds Hart, Pearson to trophy shelf

Washington Capitals winger Alexander Ovechkin capped a dazzling season by winning the Hart Trophy as the NHL's most valuable player last night to complete an unprecedented sweep of awards.

Having already claimed the Art Ross trophy as the NHL's leading points scorer (112) and the Maurice "Rocket" Richard trophy for leading the league in goals (65), the 22-year-old Russian also picked up the Lester B. Pearson Award as the NHL's outstanding player as chosen by his peers.

It marks the first time a player has won the Hart, Pearson, Richard and Ross trophies in the same year.

Ovechkin also won a world championship gold medal and the winners are...

- » Hart Trophy (MVP) — Alex Ovechkin, F, WAS
- » Vezina Trophy (Top Goaltender) — Martin Brodeur, NJ
- » Norris Trophy (Top Defenceman) — Niklas Lidstrom, DET
- » Calder Trophy (Top Rookie) — Patrick Kane, F, CHI

- » Masterton Trophy (Perseverance, Sportsmanship and Dedication to Hockey) — Jason Blake, F, TOR
- » Pearson Award (Most Outstanding Player as voted by players) — Alex Ovechkin, F, WAS after Russia ended a 15-year title drought beating Canada in the championship game in Quebec City last month.

The Caps sniper easily outpointed Pittsburgh's Evgeni Malkin and Calgary's Jarome Iginla in Hart balloting.

"Next year is a big year for me and for Capitals," Ovechkin said. "I want to win everything so maybe next year the Stanley Cup."

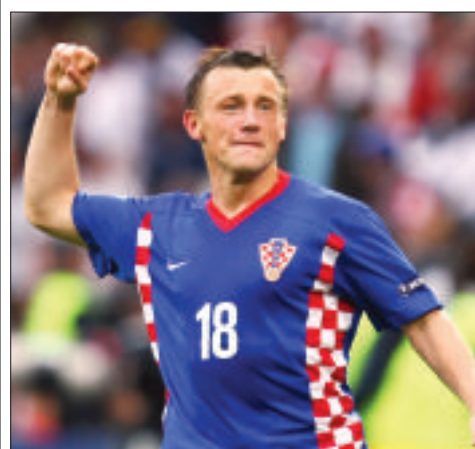

Other awards handed out at the NHL's gala evening included a sixth Norris Trophy as the league's top defenseman for Nicklas Lidstrom, the captain of the Stanley Cup champion Detroit Red Wings.

Teammate Pavel Datsyuk picked up two trophies — the Frank Selke (top defensive forward) and Lady Byng (most gentlemanly player).

New Jersey's Martin Brodeur won his fourth Vezina Trophy in the past five seasons as the NHL's top netminder.

Celtics pull off miracle comeback

CELTICS 97 LAKERS 91

The Boston Celtics used their defence to generate one of the greatest comebacks in playoff history and now stand one win from their first championship since 1986.

The Celtics, trying for their record 17th NBA title, lead the best-of-seven series 3-1 by virtue of just their third road victory in this year's playoffs.

'Tis the season for cycling

City bikes are the biggest segment of the industry

Since June is bike month I thought it would be great to help those who wish to cycle to school or work and get fit and help the environment at the same time. Cycling is a great way to get some fresh air so you can be ready for the day ahead.

City bikes are the biggest segment of the biking market right now. These ride like a road bike with their bigger wheels, thin tires and lightweight frames, however, the geometry has more relaxed angles and the upright positioning is easier on your back and allows you to see the road ahead.

My Marin Novato is one of my favourite bikes and I have it decked out with fenders so it is ready for any conditions. A bell is also a good idea to let other cyclists or pedestrians know that you wish to get by and always carry a spare tube and pump in case of a flat tire.

Proper clothing is essential for our changing weather conditions. Bike shorts with a good chamois are essential and dress in layers so that when you get hot you can shed the extra clothing. A good rain jacket is also a good idea on those days when the weatherman calls for an umbrella.

Start out easy and choose one or two days a week to cycle. This way you will ease your body into your new regime and pretty soon you will be wondering why you didn't start riding to work sooner.

Happy Riding!

Mahoney hooked on house

ON THE BEAT

ROB McMAHON
rob.mcmahon@metronews.ca

Having drummed for both LCD Soundsystem and Hot Chip, Pat Mahoney is close to two cutting-edge dance acts.

But nonetheless, Mahoney turns to disco-era proto-house for inspiration when DJing.

"I'm in my mid-30s, so I was floating around during the disco era, and heard it on the radio," he said. "It was mysterious, but I definitely had that squeamish association with anything disco."

after playing in punk and indie bands, including Les Savy Fav. Hooked by dance music's rhythmic focus and its emotional elements, he focused on house rather than percussion-oriented genres like drum n' bass, some of which he compared to "the more obnoxious prog stuff."

"I was bored by indie music — it was getting so insular and self-referential, and was kind of a drag," he said. "So I started poking around in record shops and finding songs that were really fun music. They were as interesting as anything other post-rock bands were doing, if not more interesting."

Mahoney hooked up with LCD Soundsystem's James Murphy and his label, Death From Above records, helping blend two once-bitter genre enemies, dance and punk. Soon, Mahoney was also playing with Hot Chip, later joining guitarist Al Doyle and Murphy on a DJ circuit that combined disco, house and minimal techno.

"Hot Chip has a more improvisational aspect to it, while LCD is bunch of clattering machines. Each one is doing something relatively simple, but together they mesh into a sound that's very complex," said Mahoney. "With Hot Chip, the guys are all incredible musicians. They might use a sample for a song sometimes, but most of the time they play live."

In his DJing, Mahoney hits a balance, neither plotting out a set nor winging it. Working in vinyl — a growing rarity — and when possible with the old-school Botek mixer used at disco-era clubs, Mahoney he admits sometimes trainwrecks. However, he prefers the old-fashioned method's idiosyncrasies to software and MP3s.

After all, he says, chuckling, "even if I crash the mix, people forget in like 30 seconds."

Sloan

Album: Parallel Play

Label: Murederecords/Sony BMG
Release Date: June 10

ALTHOUGH SLOAN has released records since 1999's Between the Bridges, it really feels like they've taken a long hiatus. After three lackluster albums this decade, it's safe to say the band have returned to form. Parallel Play should have been released after BTB — it's full of familiar riff rockers (but good ones). Jay Ferguson's brilliant soft rock songwriting, rich harmonies and, most importantly, infectious pop hooks. Other than the obnoxious Emergency 911, Sloan's ninth disc is finally a release worth getting excited about.

SOUND CHECK
ALAN CROSS
alan@ongoinghistory.com

A quick glance at the release schedule for the rest of 2008 points to a shift in the music cycle — more rock and less pop from now until Christmas.

» Coldplay (Tuesday): Although it's not out yet, their Viva la Vida album is already on torrent sites. Producer Brian Eno did for Coldplay's fourth album what he did for U2 when they needed to make the transition from the sound of War to

The Unforgettable Fire. The first two minutes of Viva will remind you of the opening of The Joshua Tree, too.

» Offspring (Tuesday): Like Coldplay, they gave away millions of MP3s of the first single. Rise and Fall, Rage and Grace has the familiar Offspring approach to SoCal punk.

» Beck (July): On Modern Guilt, he's gone all psyche with producer Danger Mouse. I heard eight songs at his manager's office in Los Angeles last week.

and there's a definite late '60s/early '70s vibe to a lot of the material. Chemtrails, the Syd Barrett-like song that's already in the wild, is not the official single. My pick would be a track called Orphans.

» Nine Inch Nails (July): A physical version of The Slip, the album Trent Reznor gave away online last month.

» Green Day (Fall): They have to follow up American Idiot. Talk about a tough act to follow. Ignore the Foxboro Hot Tubs project from earlier this year. A mere distraction.

» Killers (Fall): One of the hardest-working bands in the world today. We might hear a single as early as August with an album to follow in early October.

» AC/DC (Fall): Their first album since 2000's Stiff Upper Lip. Word is that they'll follow the Eagles by offering this disc exclusively at Wal-Mart. Rumours suggest that Fleetwood Mac will do the same.

» U2 (Fall): After messing around with Daniel Lanois in Morocco last year, they're now in serious lockdown mode. If past history is anything to go on, we'll get the first single sometime in early September and the album in November. And don't expect a Radiohead-like giveaway. Manager Paul McGuinness still likes selling CDs.

Another shot at the Hulk

The Incredible Hulk

Stars Edward Norton, Liv Tyler

Director Louis Leterrier

PG

By RICK MCGINNIS
for Metro Vancouver

REVIEW THE FIRST and best sign that director Louis Leterrier understands the job in front of him in the second movie take on Marvel Comic's Hulk is the winking cameo he gives Lou Ferrigno — the big green monster in the '70s TV series — and the late Bill Bixby, glimpsed in a rerun of The Courtship Of Eddie's Father. For the audience buying tickets for the film this weekend, Ed Norton will be playing Bruce Banner, the character made famous for them by Bixby back in the '70s, and not by poor Eric Bana in the ill-starred Ang Lee film of 2003 to which this is, ostensibly, a sequel.

Like an embarrassing relative or your high school haircut, Lee's film is something no one wants to discuss, but its shadow hangs over Leterrier's film.

Edward Norton stars in the title role in this incarnation of The Incredible Hulk, opening this weekend.

Leterrier has no interest in departing from the comic book film form, to his credit; the film sets up the scenario quickly — Banner in exile in a favela in Brazil, searching for a cure for his "condition" — and rewards us with a big action set piece and the first appearance of Banner's hulking alter ego within the first half hour.

We get the love interest (Liv Tyler), the bad guys (William Hurt and Tim Roth) and the stock conspiracy theory plot mechanism with a secret military program; everything in its place and a place for everything.

What Ang Lee overlooked — or ignored — was that the comic book film is rarely interested in innovation, and especially innovation that deprives it of its brute thrills in favour of a more nuanced exploration of character.

Like it or not, the successful comic franchise film craves the familiar — how else do you explain the roar that issued from the preview audience during the film's coda, which featured a cameo by Robert Downey Jr. as Tony Stark — aka Iron Man — which borrowed the good karma of summer 2008's much more successful big screen comic franchise to give its audience the "happy ending" they craved?

A rewarding father and son experience

When Did You Last See Your Father

Stars Jim Broadbent, Colin Firth

Director Anand Tucker

By STEVE GOW
for Metro Vancouver

Broadbent and Firth

REVIEW IF ITS rather verbose title doesn't dissuade audiences from seeing it, When Did You Last See Your Father may end up one of the summer's most rewarding experiences at the cinema.

When Arthur Morrison (Oscar winner Jim Broadbent) is diagnosed with terminal cancer, his resentful son Blake (Colin Firth) returns to the family home, initiating a series of flashbacks of frustrating and embarrassing encounters.

While struggling with the suspicion that his dad had a family with another woman, Blake attempts to make sense of a troubled life-long relationship.

Based on author Blake Morrison's popular memoir, this film balances sentimentality and earnestness in good measure. Anand Tucker (Shopgirl) provides solid direction with an understated tone and uses mirrors in an alluring way as if to metaphorically show us that our reflection is not always what it appears.

Meanwhile, the script raises interesting questions about the notion that people are entitled to keep some secrets private.

But the true revelation here is the always-sensational Jim Broadbent.

While Arthur may be overbearing and reprehensible for the torment he brought upon his son, Broadbent also gives the character such gravitas that it'll cause you to walk away asking yourself, "when did you last see your father?"

Early setup spoils Happening

The Happening

Stars Mark Wahlberg, Zoëy Deschanel, John Leguizamo
Director M. Night Shyamalan

14A

By RICK MCGINNIS
for Metro Vancouver

REVIEW THERE WAS once a punk rock novelty song recorded by a fellow named John Otway with the unlikely title Beware Of The Flowers 'Cause I'm Sure They're Gonna Get You Yeah.

It was a daft rave-up that still managed to keep your head bobbing even after the humour of the chorus had worn off, but no one ever imagined that someone would make a whole movie based on its premise. This little gag — a very little one, I'll shamefully admit — was the only thing that kept me smiling once the pivotal premise of The Happening revealed itself.

The very great problem with M. Night Shyamalan's films is that once he departs from the nameless dread so painstakingly created in their setup, they've lost most of their reason to exist.

He's a horror director uninterested in shocking you silly, and a maker of thrillers with one big plot point on which everything pivots, instead of a few dozen smaller ones meant to keep you intrigued. And once you've passed over the fulcrum of that pivot his films often disintegrate into unintentional humour.

The Happening begins with a high school science teacher (Mark Wahlberg) quizzing his students about some inexplicable and ominous disturbances in nature's balance, just as several cities in the U.S. northeast are being hit with what looks like a chemical attack. Things get serious fast, and he flees the city with his wife (Zoëy Deschanel) and best friend (John Leguizamo), and they quickly find themselves stranded in the country as the suicide-inducing contagion closes in on them.

The film is a bit of a departure for the director, since he reveals the big premise early on, and not near the end, sparing the audience the eye-rolling revelations that made Signs and The Village so retroactively disappointing. Unfortunately, that means you can start rolling your eyes and giggling earlier, with the first film that makes itself the punch line to global warming's joke.

Young People is a sensual adventure

Young People F--ing

Stars Aaron Abrams, Carly Pope
Director Martin Gero

18A

REVIEW The first kiss in Young People F--ing, the sex comedy that dares not speak its full name, is tentative and almost chaste.

The smooch is accompanied by mutual insults: "You're an idiot!" "No, you're an idiot!"

Not exactly the nation-shaking boot-knocking you were expecting? You could be forgiven for thinking YPF would literally sizzle out of the projector, given all the heat its title has provoked from clueless politicians and self-righteous moralists.

In truth, Canadian filmmaker Martin Gero's very funny and insightful feature debut is far less shocking that its detractors — most of whom haven't even seen it — would have you believe.

Older canoodlers, those of us pointedly excluded by the title (but let's forgive that, shall we?), will recognize YPF as a slightly raunchier version of Love, American Style, a TV series popular in the early 1970s.

The actors are the finest troupe of fresh Canuck faces to appear on film in many a moon, and they're all totally game. All of them progress through a six-part sensual adventure, marked by chapters: Prelude, Foreplay, Sex, Interlude, Orgasm, and Afterglow.

Despite the formula format, there are a few surprises to be had, along with a practical demonstration of the best kind of music for f--ing.

If you're looking for porn, you've come to the wrong place.

Roth revels in role as villain

Actor a perfect foil for Hulk star Edward Norton

By STEVE GOW
for Metro Vancouver

FEATURE EVERY GREAT superhero deserves a great villain and even the monstrous behemoth that is the Hulk is no different.

Lucky for the producers behind The Incredible Hulk, Hollywood's Go-To Guy for playing the perfect bad dude was available when they called.

Enter Tim Roth.

Having played everything from an evil monkey in Planet of the Apes to a lovestruck robber in Pulp Fiction and even earning a coveted Academy Award nomination as the scheming villain in 1995's Rob Roy, Roth has earned a well-deserved reputation as the ideal rascal.

"I don't mind (playing villains) if they're kind of juicy," Roth recently told me while promoting the Incredible Hulk.

"If I'm having a good time with it, the audience tends to see that."

With the Incredible Hulk, Roth returns to form playing Emil Blonsky, an over-the-hill soldier who craves the thrill of power.

When he purposely gets a greater dose of the same gamma radiation that turned rival Bruce Banner into The Hulk, he quickly takes advantage of his new beastly power — one that only the green-skinned superhero can match.

"It was a seriously large amount of fun we had making it," says Roth.

But the shoes of his character (The Abomination) are not easy to fill. The history of The Hulk goes back to 1962 when he debuted in comic-book form. Five years later, The Abomination made its first appearance and has since become one of The Hulk's most revered foes.

"I was wary of (the fans) because they're tough," says Roth. "But they've actually gone through the roof. They love it!" And hardcore fans aren't the only ones appreciating Roth's villainous portrayal.

Critics have also been kind to the latest Hulk blockbuster. It might not even be a shock to Roth if he found out the role returned him to, dare I say it, awards territory.

"(The Abomination) kind of reminds me of the Rob Roy guy in a way," admits Roth. "As clumsily as I play it, it's still quite carefully written so it's sort of a bad guy experience that the audience can enjoy."

The Incredible Hulk opens today.

DON'T MESS WITH THE ZOHA

★★★☆☆ (out of 5)

Adam Sandler plays the title role in the film, a sort of Israeli James Bond with a secret dream of styling hair in New York City, who fakes his death and goes off to live his blow-dried, '80s-inspired dream. Sandler plays Zohan with an Israeli accent so painstakingly bad that it becomes its own joke, as does the film's barrage of Hebrew and Arab slang, most of it invented.

KUNG FU PANDA

Kung Fu Panda introduces us to Po (Jack Black), a lazy panda who dreams of one day becoming a martial arts master, but is simply too fat and lazy to make it happen. That is until he is crowned the next "chosen one" destined to hold the title of master, only to find himself tagged with the honour, much to the chagrin of the crusty guru Shifu (Stranger Than Fiction's Dustin Hoffman). Kids will love watching a dumb panda fumbling around as he tries to save his village from destruction of a sinister snow leopard.

INDIANA JONES AND THE KINGDOM OF THE CRYSTAL SKULL

Film fans young and old will be hard-pressed to miss the smile creeping across their face when they hear John Williams' famed score and see that trademark fedora make its first big-screen appearance in 19 years, in a much-anticipated re-introduction to the greatest adventure character of all time. The Kingdom Of The Crystal Skull is pure summertime blockbuster joy.

Beating the boys at their own game

By GLEN MILLER
for Metro Vancouver

FEATURE ONE, TWO, THREE, four male actors ... and keep counting the male universe on the set of Get Smart.

Enter the lone major female star — Anne Hathaway. As Agent 99, the 25-year-old had a ball playing with the boys during the four-month shoot. Most notably acting with the lead boy — Steve Carell, Agent 86, in the good vs. evil movie that opens in theatres next Friday.

As it turns out, Hathaway isn't only a good actress on-screen, but admits deft subliminal acting by hiding her nerves from her co-stars. After all, such major players as Carell, Alan Arkin (chief) and Terence Stamp (Ziegfried) have an array of film credits. "It always is (nervewracking), but I'm really good at hiding it," Hathaway told Metro. "I didn't want to make everyone else around me uncomfortable by talking about how obsessed I am — with them ... I very easily could have geeked out everyday, but I don't think we would have got a lot of work done. 'I was very intimidated by everything that was going on, but I chose to try and appear that I was cool and knew what I was doing.' Get Smart, the big-screen version, weighs in with an abundance of action and comedy mix, just like the legendary Emmy Award winning TV series (1965-70) that has gained more fans over the years through syndication.

But according to Carell, it was Hathaway who was turning heads with her ... speed.

"There were several scenes in the movie where we are running toward Disney Hall (downtown L.A.) at full tilt," said Carell. "I was running as fast as I possibly could run. Anne Hathaway was wearing 4-5-6-inch heels and she was kicking my ass. And I have no idea how that is physically possible." And then there's those occasions on set when real life takes over and you just have to wing it. For Hathaway, that would be having a health issue during the time she had to kiss Carell during a romantic scene. Due to a mix of using a contact solution that was pulled off the shelves last year, and a simultaneous sinus infection, Hathaway got pink eye. "And my tears kind of got in my mouth, (before kissing him)," Hathaway said, laughing. "It was very glamorous."

Carell escaped infection. But as Michael Scott in The Office, he probably wouldn't have.

Anne Hathaway stars as Agent 99 in Get Smart, opening next week.

What the f is with this movie?

We can't print the full title of this Canuck release

By CHRIS ATCHISON
for Metro Vancouver

FEATURE ACTORS Ennis Esmer and Natalie Lisinska aren't quite sure what all the fuss is about. Their new film has raised the ire of politicians and some in the movie-going public, few of whom have actually seen the picture.

It should be noted that it contains no violence, bare breasts and a couple of bottoms are the only nudity on display, and with the exception of some explicit language, the sexual content is far from gratuitous.

Maybe it's the title, Young People Fking, that's raised more than a few eyebrows across this great land.

"People assume things out of nowhere," Esmer says. "They hear the title, think of something else and think that's what the movie is about."

"I think the universal reaction to it from people who have seen it is, 'oh, it's really sweet, isn't it?'"

Natalie Lisinska and Ennis Esmer star in Young People Fking.

Lisinska adds. Controversial monikers aside, the comedy has drawn most of its attention from critics who lauded the comedy's sharp, edgy writing and witty dialogue when it premiered at the Toronto International Film Festival last year.

It follows a group of 20- and 30-somethings at roadblocks in their private lives: the bored couple, the player dating the girl from work, the exes still looking for love, the friends who decide to take things a bit further in their relationship, and the couple (Esmer and Lisinska) that invites their roommate into the bedroom to spice things up.

Directed by Canadian Martin Gero, and co-written by Gero and Canadian actor Aaron Abrams, the film is an exploration of the complexities of relationships, rather than the gratuitous romp its title suggests.

Still, the rest of the press Young People Fking has received has largely been tied to the ramifications of Bill C-10, which would give the federal Heritage Department the power to deny funding for TV programs and films deemed offensive or inappropriate, or retroactively revoke tax credits for productions considered offensive.

The film has become something of a symbol for Canadian filmmakers threatened by the prospect of a government department being able to pull the financial plug on their projects.

"That's what's so ridiculous about the controversy with the government because sex is such a universal thing that everyone experiences and everyone does," Lisinska says.

Esmer opines: "If the ladies at my stepmother's Shabbat dinner are OK with the content of the movie, then the Conservatives should just tone it down."

As far as that provocative title is concerned, Esmer adds that it's just time to get over it.

"When you put the title out there it became the responsibility of the press or the people who run the movie theatres.

"They can call the movie whatever they want."

The film opens in theatres today.

This is what lends an actor greatness

FEATURE WHAT MAKES Jim Broadbent such a phenomenal actor?

It's a question not easily answered, but certainly worth consideration. Is it his notable appearances in blockbusters like Moulin Rouge!, Bridget Jones's Diary or this summer's fourth Indiana Jones movie?

While always solid support, I'd argue the English actor's real presence has instead been made with roles in more independently spirited films like his Oscar-winning turn in Iris, Topsy-Turvy or, perhaps, most recently as eccentric patriarch Arthur Morrison in the touching drama When Did You Last See Your Father?

In the memoir-based film, Broadbent plays the father of acclaimed author Blake Morrison (Colin Firth).

After discovering Arthur has a terminal illness, Blake returns to take care of his family while dealing — primarily in flashbacks — with painful memories of his difficult, possibly duplicitous dad.

The drama is an intelligent, well-crafted tearjerker that explores the complexities of family life.

"(Father and son relationships) are never as simple as sometimes made out," Broadbent points out. "There is always an awful lot of grey area."

That "grey area" is exactly what gives this film its emotional impact. While not a clearly dubious character, Arthur does have a quality that has emotionally tortured his son.

As director Anand Tucker explains, it's a subtlety only a pro like Broadbent could have portrayed.

"(Broadbent) manages to be that slightly monstrous, terrible, overbearing creature that Blake gets more and more angry and feels more and more betrayed by," explains Tucker.

"Then at the key moment at the end of the movie, (he) turns it all around and suddenly you realize that he is the father who just loved his son."

“I feel lighter without that fixed-term commitment.”

Heigl takes a pass on Emmy

Grey's Anatomy star declined to be nominated

ACTRESS KATHERINE HEIGL, a surprise Emmy winner last year for her role on the hit TV drama Grey's Anatomy, has bowed out of this year's race in an apparent swipe at producers for diminishing her presence on the series.

Heigl, 29, quietly chose not to submit her name for consideration as an Emmy contender this year but explained her rather conspicuous absence from the ballot when asked by Tom O'Neil, columnist for the Los Angeles Times' showbiz awards website TheEnvelope.com.

"I did not feel that I was given the material this season to warrant an Emmy nomination, and in an effort to maintain the integrity of the academy organization, I withdrew my name from contention," she said in a statement posted by O'Neil.

"In addition, I did not want to potentially take away an opportunity from an actress who was given such materials."

The lengthy list of performers vying for Emmy recognition from fellow members of the Academy of Television Arts and Sciences was posted in recent days. Nominations will be announced on July 17.

Heigl was the upset winner of last year's prime-time Emmy as best supporting actress in a drama for her role as Dr. Izzie Stevens on the ABC hospital series, beating out two other co-stars for the award — Sandra Oh and Chandra Wilson.

It was the show's biggest Emmy triumph since the 2005 inception of the series, which helped lead the way in ABC's ratings rebound three years ago and ranks as one of the most watched dramas on U.S. television.

But while Heigl has since emerged as Hollywood's latest "it" girl following the success of her breakout film comedy Knocked Up, her profile on Grey's Anatomy this past season has been noticeably reduced.

As noted by O'Neil, one of her more meaty story lines on the show this year involved her character saving a deer that had caused a string of automobile accidents.

"What she deserved after winning the Emmy was a heightened profile on the show, not a reduced one," he said, adding that she appeared to be "logging an internal protest" with the show's producers.

While not uncommon for Emmy veterans to withdraw from contention in later years — as Candice Bergen and Bill Cosby have in the past — they typically have done so after repeated wins to give others a shot.

A spokeswoman for ABC, a unit of the Walt Disney Co., said the network has no comment on Heigl's move.

Heigl's last big-screen role was in the romantic comedy 27 Dresses, which released in January.

Daily Variety reported this week that she has just clinched a deal to star in and produce a film adaptation of Escape, the best-selling memoir of Carolyn Jessop, whose testimony helped convict polygamist sect leader Warren Jeffs.

Yew may be an oenophile's wet dream. The large wine list is entirely available by the glass, as long as you go twofers. The food ain't so shabby, either, thanks to new EC Rafael Gonzalez. The menu, which includes a raw bar, panini bar and Latin-themed brunch, centres on the Pacific region, with a bit of international village thrown in for good measure. Comfort classics like roasted chicken ($34) receive inventive tweaks, such as porcini marmalade. A lobster and mango rice roll ($16) was a delight, as was a coconut asparagus soup ($12). Honey mussels ($18) were great and the house burger ($21 on a lunch visit) was tasty, but felt a tad overpriced. A cheese fondue with kielbasa, crusty bread, roasted potatoes and fresh pear ($20) makes a fab evening snack, but the black truffle mac and cheese ($18) was disappointing. The shaved truffle added no flavour to a runny sauce. No room for dessert, but the cocoa-covered almonds and truffles that came with the bill were a sweet finish. Stay-tuned for brunch tastes...

Rosé used to have a bad rep. Originally made from those grapes deemed unworthy of a red vintage, today's rosés have climbed high up the grape ladder to become one of the fastest-growing markets around. Locally, we have Joie Wines, with their 2007 Rosé: Re-Think Pink, a fruity blend of Pinot Noir and Gamay, plus 10 per cent Pinot Gris and a splash of Meunier. It has an intense nose of strawberry jam and rhubarb, with a medium body and a clean finish. $18.90 at Marquis Wine Cellars and other private wine retailers.

Urban and stylish; sophisticated yet casual... Yaletown's newest arrival is a hip lounge with some of the best tasting share plates in town.

This highly anticipated addition to Vancouver's culinary scene by restaurateur Glenn Cormier has lived up to it's hype. Executive Chef Ryan Zuvich has hit his mark with a tapas style menu for true food lovers. The long narrow room with exposed brick and wood beams has a sleek design with a modern feel.

Ryan Zuvich – Executive Chef

Considered to be one of Vancouver's most creative up-and-coming new talents, the 28 year old Zuvich came back from a stint in Europe to open the kitchen at Plan B. His hiatus to the epicenter of fine cuisine at Michelin kitchens in London & Lyon, France, introduced Ryan to some dynamic new methods of cooking that are largely unheard of in local kitchens. Known best for his time spent as Chef de Cuisine at Bin 942, people will now see Ryan at his best in his own environment...not to mention a bit larger kitchen.

Kreesha Turner bounces into pop land with a sassy R&B sound.

By Noreen Flanagan
Executive Editor

Kreesha Turner may be the only artist to credit our national anthem with helping her discover her voice. As a child, the Edmonton-born singer tap danced to Oscar Peterson tunes, but it wasn't until she auditioned for a church choir at 15 that she knew she could sing. "My mother wanted me to spend a year in Jamaica so I'd understand my cultural background," she explains. "My friends were in the youth choir there, so they wanted me to try out. I didn't know what to sing, so the conductor suggested my national anthem." Turner made the cut and went on to "fall in love with music." After she graduated from high school, she told her parents that she'd spend five years pursuing a singing career; if she failed, she'd hit the books. This June, her 23rd birthday, marks that deadline. With a co-deal with EMI Canada and Virgin USA and the launch of her debut album, Passion, this August, Turner won't be resorting to Plan B. Her song Bounce With Me, an infectious R&B pop tune, has been featured on Desperate Housewives, Gossip Girl and The Hills. "I was at home in Edmonton watching Gossip Girl and my song came on," says Turner. "It was so exciting!"

Get the glow

Experts weigh in on finding right bronzer

By SANDY CAETANO
for Metro Vancouver

WITH TODAY'S heightened awareness of skin damage caused by ultraviolet rays, the amount of tanning products available for 'faking it' are endless.

So achieving that sought-after, sexy bronze glow is really just about doing some research and finding the tools that work best for you.

"You can find bronzers in a variety of formulations, such as gel, powder, and liquid," explains Kelly Amsterdam, director of Clinique Global Communications, Canada. "Aside from bronzers, you can also achieve a sun-kissed glow with products like tinted moisturizers, blush and loose powders. The key is starting with a healthy-looking complexion, and finding the right, custom-fit bronzing product for your skin type."

Sephora Pro Beauty team expert Adi Lando says women can achieve that perfect summer glow easily with multi-use products like the Sephora Bronzing Kit.

"Complete with a tri-coloured bronzer for that perfect sun-kissed glow, which doubles as an eye shadow, bronzing brush and lip gloss," he says.

When going the bronzing powder route, the right brush will also help by blending the makeup to give you a flawless finish.

"Think about where the sun would hit you naturally, and try making the number three down your face (forehead, cheek bones and jaw line, and finish down the nose)," he says. "These are the proper areas of application so the bronzed look is natural and not over-done."

When choosing a bronzer it is important to keep in mind your skin type. For example, if you have oily skin you may want to try powders that are matte, with little to no shimmer.

"Before even applying a bronzing product, regardless of formulation, women should make sure their skin is in the best possible condition," advises Amsterdam. "Any summer glow will only look as good as the appearance of the skin underneath – oilier skin types, for example, will definitely want to ensure any bronzer they use is oil-free, and will probably prefer a gel or powder formulation over a more emollient cream."

If you're not sure what bronzer is best for you, stop by a cosmetic counter and seek expert advice. It's a great opportunity to have a look at your best bronzing options, and get free one-on-one application tips and tricks.

Denyse Beaulieu, creative manager at Groupe Marcelle, says another thing to keep in mind is that less really is more. So don't start by caking on too much powder or liquid foundation on your face.

"Start with a little; it's always easier to build than to remove regardless of the formula, whether it be powder, liquid or self-tanner," say Beaulieu.

Oprah's got the power

Talk-show host Oprah Winfrey is still the world's most powerful celebrity, BBC News Online reports Forbes magazine as saying.

The 54-year-old came top of its annual countdown for the second year running, and the fifth time overall.

Golfer Tiger Woods came second, just ahead of actress Angelina Jolie, former Destiny's Child singer Beyoncé Knowles and soccer star David Beckham.

Forbes' list is based on celebrities' earnings, Internet presence and press, television and radio coverage.

Other stars in the Top 10 include reformed pop band The Police, in joint seventh place with rapper Jay-Z.

Harry Potter author J.K. Rowling is ranked at nine, having come in 48th in last year's rundown.

Her earnings over the past 12 months — estimated to be $300 million US — make her the wealthiest celebrity on the list.

Actor Brad Pitt is ranked in 10th place, making him and Jolie one of two "power couples" to make the Top 10.

Jay-Z and Knowles are the other, having secretly married earlier this year.

Pop star Madonna, rock band The Rolling Stones and singer Elton John have all fallen out of the Top 10, as has actor Tom Cruise.

Chris talks about girl struggles

Coldplay front man Chris Martin admits he was a late bloomer, usmagazine.com reports.

"I had a tricky time with girls until I was, like, 21. I got trapped in the friendship tip many, many times," he tells Rolling Stone. "It was like, 'I need to be a rock star because this is no good: Being the kind of guy that everybody likes but no one wants to have sex with.' "

Still, Martin admits he hasn't had a lot of hot-and-heavy romances in his life. He says his wife Gwyneth Paltrow is his only "serious relationship."

He adds he enjoys the challenge of being married to the Oscar-winning actress.

"I always felt it would be great to be with a very powerful woman because it would keep you in your place," he says. "Being married to someone very successful and very powerful basically keeps you hungry to improve."

Shayne, Bachelor Matt may be over

The romance between The Bachelor: London Calling's Matt Grant and his final rose recipient, Shayne Lamas, is over, intouchweekly.com reports.

"She asked him to leave her apartment in Studio City, (Calif.)," says the insider. "They're just pretending to still be together to save face for the show."

However, Grant insists the couple is still engaged and together — although he admits he did move into his own bachelor pad.

"I was at her place for a few weeks, but it was a small apartment," Grant says. "It's obviously a testing time for us as a couple, so it just seemed that it'd be great for us to have our own little space. We didn't want to be on top of each other early on."

Grant also says that Lamas didn't kick him out of her apartment.

"It wasn't like she said, 'You've got to get out!' ... It was just an agreement," says Grant. Metro News Services

Tom snaps back

Tom Cruise's lawyer has hit back at a TV doctor who questioned the star's mental health, calling Celebrity Rehab's Dr. Drew Pinsky "unprofessional" and "unqualified," imdb.com reports.

Pinsky has written an article for Playboy suggesting Cruise might be mentally ill for getting involved with the Church of Scientology. The medical expert also claims the actor may have suffered some kind of childhood trauma.

But Cruise's attorney, Bert Fields, has slammed the article. "This unqualified television performer who is obviously just looking for notoriety is so grotesquely unprofessional as to pretend to diagnose Tom and others without ever meeting them."

Sienna finds it tough to censor

Actress Sienna Miller finds it hard to censor herself during interviews — and even once swore live on a TV show, imdb.com reports.

Miller says she feels at ease talking to the press and often reveals her innermost feelings during media chats.

"I find it very hard not to be myself and maybe that does attract attention, but I'd be miserable if I wasn't," Miller says. "I said 'f—ing hell' by accident on Good Morning America ... I thought they had stopped filming. The producer of (new movie) G.I. Joe said they might have to give me lessons on how to conduct yourself in an interview."

Twins news surprises Angelina

Angelina Jolie has talked candidly about her desire to continue expanding her family with Brad Pitt. But when the actress found out she was pregnant with twins, well, even she was taken aback, People.com reports.

"We weren't expecting twins," Jolie, 33, tells Entertainment Weekly in a new interview. "So it did shock us, and we jumped to six (children) quickly. But we like a challenge."

With a house full of kids, Jolie says she needs help — so it's a good thing there's family around to pitch in. "(Brad's) mom and dad are on standby to come out and help," she says.

But the real focus, Jolie says, is making sure their other children — Maddox, 6, Pax, 4, Zahara, 3, and Shiloh, 2 — feel included when their new siblings are born.

"They're old enough to feel included to change diapers themselves, to feed bottles themselves, like if I pump into a bottle," Jolie says. "We're trying to find ways where it can be a fun group thing ... Everybody gets special time so we can make sure we know where they're at."

As for how she's handling being pregnant with twins, Jolie tells EW she's taking it easy and letting Pitt handle all the heavy lifting — literally.

instructions»

The digits 1 through 9 will appear exactly once in each row, each column, and each zone. (A zone is an outlined 3x3 grid within the larger puzzle grid. There are nine of these zones in the puzzle.) Do not enter a digit into a box if it already appears elsewhere in the same 3x3 zone, or in the same row across the puzzle, or column down the puzzle.
